1916 AL Replay Introduction

The 1916 American League replay results mirrored the results of real life, with the Boston Red Sox winning the AL pennant with a 91-63 record, identical to their record in real life.

And, just like real life, Boston's battle to win the pennant was a struggle.
The pennant race was not settled until the next-to-last day of the season.

Surprising St. Louis, the powerful Chicago White Sox, and the pitching-rich Washington Senators all were in contention throughout the entire replay. A hard-hitting offense kept Detroit kept the Tigers in the hunt for most of the year, although they faded in the last two months of the season.

The close competition gave meaning to virtually every game in the replay that involved the five top teams. As the pennant race headed down the stretch in August and September, the games were extremely competitive and featured superior pitching, clutch hitting, surprising heroics and numerous dramatic finishes.

All in all, it was an enormously entertaining replay.

Like the previous Deadball replays, the individual stars in the American League were headlined by Detroit's remarkable Ty Cobb, who kept his batting average above 400 for most of the season, before falling a few points under the vaunted .400 mark in mid-September.

The AL MVP was Joe Jackson (.365, league-best 108 RBI and 45 doubles and tie for league high with 17 triples), who was the driving force behind Chicago's bid for first place.

Seven pitchers won 20 or more games, headed by durable Harry Coveleski of Detroit (29-9), youthful Boston southpaw Babe Ruth (28-11 with 12 shutouts), steady Carl Weilman of the St. Louis Browns (26-8, league leading 1.20 ERA) and Washington great Walter Johnson (24-17)

Quickest replay of all my Deadball Era replays

The 1916 American League replay started on Wednesday, February 1. 2023, at 12:15 p.m. a bright sunshiny day with the temperature at a comfortable 77 degrees. As always, My spouse, Carole threw the traditional first roll in the replay, which was a 45, resulting in a base on balls to NY SS Fritz Maisel. Carole followed with rolls that resulted in base hits for Frank Gilhooley and Lee Magee, who singled home Maisel before she finally threw a 46, resulting in 32, a flyout to RF by Yankee 3b Frank (Home Run) Baker. The Yankees went on the win the game over the hapless Philadelphia A's 11-3.

The replay concluded, on Monday, July 3, 2023, at 8:05 p.m. an incredibly hot day (96 with a "feels like" head index of 105) that ended with an incredible lightning storm that was accompanied by the formation of a sizeable hole in the street in front of our house, resulting from a broken water main. At the bottom of the hole was a broken water main that flooded Bryn Mawr S treet until mid-morning on Independence Day. Amidst all the excitement, Carole rolled a 64, resulting in a 13, a strikeout for A's pinch-hitter Amos Strunk, as the Red Sox finished off their pennant-winning season behind Ernie Shore, who completed a 5-1 win.

The replay required 153 days to complete (just over five months), the fastest replay I have ever conducted, averaging 4.02 games per day. I found this pace to very demanding, however, and made a mental note to shoot for a more leisurely time span of around 200 days for future replays.

1916 AL replay preparation, guidelines, and rules variations

With numerous templates available from previous replays, I only needed five weeks in preparing the logistics for the 1916 AL replay.

I used a pre-prepared season schedule that began on April 11 and concluded on September 26. This allowed an organized, manageable approach to the replay, rather than playing out the actual schedule of games played in 1916. The organized schedule allowed me to quickly detect errors in the standings or a team's won-lost record. This organized method, as opposed to dealing with a real-life schedule punctuated with rainouts and an uneven number of games for each team as the season progressed, lent itself to avoiding errors in calculating standings and statistics.

Within the replay schedule, each team played one another in a pair of three-game series (three at home and three away) from April 11 through May 27. Beginning May 29, each team played one another in four four-game series (two series at home and two series away) through September 26, for a total of 154 games. This was incredibly helpful in totaling stats in an organized, management manner.

As with previous replays, baseball-reference.com continued to serve the "go-to" information resource, along with SABR articles, several books about the Deadball Era, newspaper clippings, Google searches and articles from Newspapers.com that reference the 1916 season.

The biggest time saver was preparing all the starting lineups before the season began. The required entry in pencil, of the actual starting lineups and pitching rotations for every game of the 1916 American League season.

While laborious, the starting lineup entries served to better acquaint me with each team's lineup and individual characteristics. It also pointed out when team's experienced injuries in real life and how they adjusted their lineups as the season progressed. While the actual process of penciling in the lineups was a slog, the payoff was that the pre-written lineups enabled me to speed through the replay, making necessary adjustments, particularly lineup changes caused by injuries, by simply erasing and re-entering the lineup changes.

• The 1916 American League replay was the start of my sixth complete season of year-by-year replays from the Deadball Era starting with 1911.

• The MG symbols governed the use of players, per APBA Master Game rules. The 1916 MG symbols chart offered only batting splits from one side, so I researched the real-life splits for all batters and added the splits for both sides of the plate, based on real-life stats from baseball-reference.com

• The MG symbols did not include pitching Q factors, so I interpolated the Q factors as realistically as I could, based on real-life stats.

• I used Steve's Computer Card website to prepare a limited number of XC cards for players not carded by APBA and who had minimal playing time. The player selection was subjective, but I included every pitcher who made a start during the 1916 season or played in roughly five or more games with 10 or more at bats The selection did not include all players who made an appearance (e.g. one or two games or only a couple of at bats).

• I utilized APBA's League Error factor, which was +3 for the 1916 season. The Error Factor significantly increased the number of errors in the replay and was about as accurate as APBA can be on fielding stats.

• The replay was played from the 2020 version of Master Game boards. Other than the use of the Error Randomizer and a pickoff rule modification, games were played solely within APBA rules. The Error Randomizer I employed was originally created by Dave Larson and was modified slightly to more heavily weight errors toward the infield. The Error Randomizer helped to more accurately reflect OF errors and increased the number of fielding opportunities for infield play and catchers.

An effective pickoff rule originated by fellow OAPBA manager Walt Taylor continued to be utilized to more accurately recreate pickoffs within the confines the regular APBA boards.

• Trades, roster changes and player debuts were conducted on the same or approximate team game number (not date) as real life, which enabled them to be inserted or deleted at the same time frame as real life. The information was obtained via the transactions listed on Baseball-Reference.com and related Web searches.

• To the extent possible, position players were limited to a combination of their real-life games played and total plate appearances, using a combination of all three defining factors to prevent overusing individual players. As always, the governing guideline for player usage was common sense.

Rather than rely on at-bats as the primary governing benchmark for regulating overuse of position players, I relied on total plate appearances. Further, to help in governing player usage, I utilized the actual batting orders in the order of games played, available through BaseballReference.com. This proved to be a real boon in terms of managing player usage. There were, of course, some minor discrepancies caused by injuries. All in all, the combination of plate appearances, actual batting orders and movement of players on or about transaction dates served to provide a very realistic presentation for each team.

Starting pitchers were utilized on the game numbers as real life starts and restricted to the same number of starts as real life (with a couple of minor exceptions, which moved a starting pitcher's start up or down in the schedule) to accommodate the actual playing dates. Relief appearances were used with the same frequency as real life, differing if there were blowouts or extra-inning games that required extended use of pitchers, particularly pitchers with low ratings.

Personal notes

The 1916 AL replay got underway in February, when Florida's weather was ideal for golf, followed by a shower and knocking out three or four replay games after a finishing off a round. As Florida's overheated "nuclear summer" approached, I increasingly stayed inside, turned up the air conditioning and reeled off more of the 1916 AL replay games.

Granddaughter Kate Caborn continued to build a record of learning and achievement while conducting the AL replay.

Kate completed her freshman year at Lake Highland Prep, turned 15, appeared in the musical Chicago, participated in Project Magic, a volunteer program assisting seniors and hospital patients, recorded terrific grades and earned a USA Water Polo Academic All-American award, presented to student-athletes who earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.50 or higher for the 2022-2023 academic school year; completed the 9th, 10th, 11th or 12th grade in the spring of 2023.

Kate also earned her driver's certificate (requiring an adult with her in the car) and earned lifeguard certification. During the summer, just as the replay was wrapping up, she attended, for the second consecutive year, a summer Swim Camp at Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter's Minnesota, to improve her backstroke and swimming techniques for the upcoming fall 2023 swim season.

I participated in a Spark Golf League at the Orlando's ancient Dubsdread Golf Course, playing with my team partner Fred Wilcox (left), where we both shot around 94-95 each round, which, with our handicaps, put us in the upper third of the participating teams. My golf handicap remained at 19. My tee shots, while getting shorter with each passing year (I hit age 80 in May, 2023), stayed in the fairway about 90 percent of the time and in the light rough when I missed. Getting on greens in regulation, however was a different story. The distances to the greens get longer and longer as the years go by.

Wayne Herrick (L) and me at the acclaimed Cabot Citrus Farms golf course near Brooksville, FL.

On March 26, I lost my great friend and golfing companion Wayne Herrick (right) when he succumbed to injuries suffered in a fall that resulted in a blood clot that connected to heart problems Wayne had battled over the past decade. Wayne was a close friend and, despite a mild demeanor, he was a fierce competitor on the golf course. We played over 300 rounds of golf together over the past decade…and I miss him.

In OAPBA (the Orlando APBA Association) my team, the Beefers, got off to a miserable 1-7 start and finished in the first half cellar with a dismal 13-27 record (two 40-game halves).

In short, there was a lot going on from February through early July 2023, but still time to sit down, roll the dice, and see what happens while re-creating a wonderfully competitive baseball season from more than a century ago.

On May 25, my friend Steve Scott and I made the two-hour trek to St. Petersburg, where we watched the Tampa Bay Rays down Toronto 6-1, with Zach Eflin winning his seventh game. The return journey took nearly four hours in traffic and a terrible lightning storm.

On July 1, just as the replay was wrapping up, our crepe myrtle trees began to bloom in our front yard. By July 3, the day the replay finished, and the tree was reaching its peak coloration.

1916 American League pennant race

Boston edges Chicago, St. Louis, Washington in spectacular four-team battle for AL crown

Boston, the real-life winner American League winner in 1916, also prevailed in the replay, but it wasn't easy.

Boston started as if the team would romp to the pennant, winning six of their first nine games, including shutout wins in three of their first four games. Reality set in however, as they lost six in a row from Apr 22-30, falling into seventh place.

The Red Sox were forced to slowly work their way up the standings over the next three months to fight their way into contention. They finally reached the top of the standing on Sept 4, in a tie with Chicago and St. Louis, and took sole possession of the lead on September 9, staying on top for the remaining 19 days of the season, fighting off the Browns, White Sox, and Senators.

Meanwhile, Washington, reeled off an 11-game win streak took the early lead, seizing first place on April 22 and remained on top of until May 10, when St. Louis moved into the lead. The Browns stayed in front until June 18, when Washington regained first place.

The Senators remained atop the standings for the next two months, highlighted by a pair of no- hitters by pitchers Harry Harper and Joe Boehling, falling out of the lead on August 18, when the Browns again grabbed first place.

After a lifeless stretch in the second division from May 2-June 1, the Red Sox finally began to show signs of life with a five-game win streak June 2-6, improving to 26-28 and climbing to fifth place. The Red Sox hit the .500 mark on June 26 at 35-35, but fell back and puttered along in fifth for the next two weeks. After a five-game win streak July 12-16, they finally climbed over .500 with a 47-43 record.

Boston then went on their best surge of the season, going 18-1 from July 19-Aug 8, including, a sweep of the front-running Senators, to climb into second place, within two games of league-leading Washington.

Just as it appeared Boston was going to take over first place had found the winning formula, they losing eight of the next nine from Aug 10-18, scoring only 12 runs, including back-to-back one-hit shutouts at the hands of Red Faber and Jim Scott of the White Sox on Aug 10-11. The slump dropped Boston back into fourth place, six games behind St. Louis, who moved into the lead on August 18.

At this point, Washington slowly began to fall out of the race, losing three in a row to Cleveland and extending their losing streak to six straight with three more losses against the Indians, Aug 24-Aug 30. The Senators went 15-10 the rest of the way, but it was not good enough to gain any ground on the three front-runners.

St. Louis hung on to the lead through September 2, when Chicago moved to the top of the standings by one game over the Browns and Boston. The White Sox regained the lead on Labor Day (Sept 3) behind Urban Faber, who beat Cleveland on four hits by an 8-1 score, knotting the pe nnant race into a three-way tie for first place, with Washington only four games out.

Chicago remained in front through Sept 8, but fell out of first on Sept 9, losing 4-1 to Washington's Walter Johnson while the Red Sox staged a frantic 8-7 come-from-behind 11-inning win over Cleveland to move into first place by one game. After three more wins over the Indians, Boston had a two-game lead over Chicago with St. Louis and Washington each four games out.

After a two-day break in the schedule, the race tightened even further. The Red Sox hopes dimmed after losing three of four to Washington Sept 14-17. At the same time, Chicago won three of four from Cleveland and St. Louis swept Detroit in a hard-fought four-game series. With eight games left in the schedule, the pennant race continued to be up for grabs.

The standings on Sept 17

Chicago	85-61	--
Boston	85-61	--
St. Louis	84-62	1
Washington	83-63	2

At this point, the schedule, became Boston's best friend, with tail-enders New York and Philadelphia their only remaining opponents for their final eight games. In the West, all of Chicago's remaining eight games were on the road, first against the troublesome Tigers and second at contending St. Louis.

The Red Sox took advantage of their easy remaining schedule as they swept the seventh-place Yankees in their four games, highlighted by a 1-0 three-hitter by Carl Mays and a 4-0 shutout by Ernie Shore, lifting them two games ahead of Chicago, who split their four-game series against Detroit and three games in front of St. Louis, who split four games with Cleveland.

With four games remaining in the season, Philadelphia's Rube Parnham, making only his second start of the season, shocked the Red Sox with a 2-0 shutout on Sept 23, followed the next day by a 4-2 victory by the A's Joe Bush.

Over the same two days, second-place Chicago lost the great opportunity to catch Boston, dropping two games at St. Louis, 3-2 to Carl Weilman and 5-4 to Eddie Plank, lifting the Browns into second place by only one game…with two games left on the schedule for both Boston and St. Louis.

Needing to win to keep ahead of the Browns, the Red Sox made a statement on the season's next-to-the last day, pouring over four runs in the third and nine runs in the fourth enroute to a 21-2 massacre of Philadelphia that clinched the pennant.

Rube Parnham, Phila A's

At the same time, the White Sox blew an early 5-0 lead only to come back to administer a crushing defeat to the Browns 8-6, dropping St. Louis two games behind with only one game left clinching the pennant for Boston.

Boston finished at 91-63, two games ahead of the Browns with Chicago three games behind and Washington four games out, in what was a remarkably entertaining pennant chase.
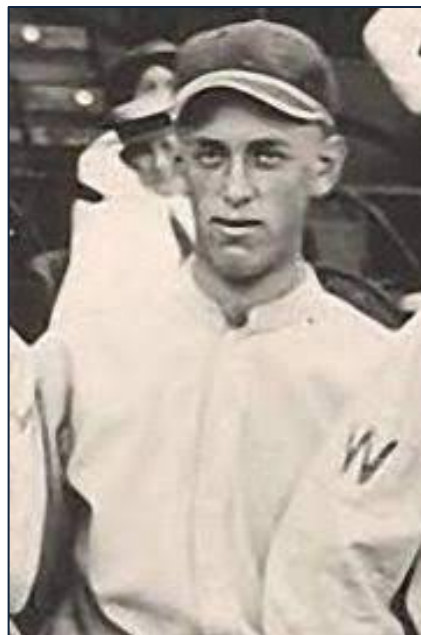

Washington led the American League from June 18-August 18 behind the pitching of Joe Boehling (left) and Harry Harper (right), who were a combined 15-7 during the two month span. Boehling threw a no-hitter against the Browns on May 24 and a month later, on June 24, Boehling, fired a no-hitter against Cleveland on June 24.
40-year old Browns lefty Eddie Plank still had plenty of gas left in the tank, going 15-9, 2.34 with a pair of shutouts.

Team-by-team recap

The Red Sox won their second American League replay title in three years in the 1916 replay, after winning the replay World Series in 1914 and losing to the White Sox in the three-way, round-robin World Series in 1915.

For the longest time, it looked as if Boston was going to wind up well short of the pennant. The Red Sox got off to a sluggish 8-10 start in April and then slogged through May at 20-26.

After losing on June 1, the Red Sox were 20-27, question marks were beginning to emerge as to their viability in the AL race. The Sox then won five in a row to get to 25-27 before dropping a 7-2 decision to New York's Ray Keating, but then slumped again, losing six of their next 10 games, falling back to 29-34, twelve games behind league leader Washington on June 18.

Philadelphia provided a quick antidote to the slump as the Red Sox scored eight runs in the first inning of a 9-2 romp over the A's on June 19 and then won their nine of their next 12 games to improve to climb into fourth place, 11 games out, by July 1.

After losing three in a row to close out their four-game series against Detroit July 2-3, against raised doubts about Boston's chances. A four-game sweep of Cleveland July 4-7 momentarily calmed things down, but the Red Sox then lost three in a row at second-place Chicago before Babe Ruth salvaged the finale 4-2 on July 12 to put Boston at 43-43, in fifth place, 10 games behind leading St. Louis.

Ruth's win over Chicago seemed to ignite the team, who went on to win eight of their next ten games before dropping a pair to Detroit on July 17-18. The winning continued, however, as the Red Sox reeled off 13 wins in a row from July 24-Aug 8, lifting them into a tie for second place with St. Louis at 63-46, two games behind Washington.

What the Baseball Gods had giveth, however, they immediately took away, as fourth-place Chicago's Red Faber and Jim Scott threw back-to-back one-hitters at the Red Sox Aug 10-11, dropping Boston four games back. Dutch Leonard staunched the bleeding with a 1-0 win over Faber Aug 12, but Boston continued to spiral downward, losing the next six in a row.

Rube Foster, the 1915 replay AL Cy Young winner, saw his record drop to 9-9, but six of his wins came during the last two months of the season. on

On August 18, Boston (65-54) found themselves six games behind St. Louis, but they embarked on yet another surge, winning nine of their next 11 games to close the gap to two games behind the leading Browns by August 31, tied with Chicago.

In a key series matchup with league-leading Browns starting on September 1, Dutch Leonard held on to beat St. Louis 3-2, lifting the Red Sox to within a game of the lead. Former Federal Leaguer Dave Davenport one-hit Boston the next day for a 4-2 win, but the Red Sox won the final two games of the series to move into a three-way tie for the lead with Chicago and St. Louis on Sept. 4.

From that point forward, Boston's momentum pushed them to the pennant, winning three of four against Detroit and sweeping Cleveland to move into the lead by two games by Sept. 11. The Red Sox stumbled against Washington Sept 14-17, losing three of four to fall into another tie for the lead, this time with the White Sox, but Boston then swept the slumping Yankees four straight to take command by two games with four games left…against the last-place A's.

Philadelphia shocked the Red Sox in the opener with unknown Rube Parham blanks Boston 2-0 on eight hits. Chicago, however, failed to gain, losing to Browns lefty Carl Weilman 3-2. The A's pulled another rabbit out of the hat the next day, coming from behind as Joe Bush edged Babe Ruth 4-2, but Chicago once again lost, this time by a 5-4 score as Browns SS Doc Lavan singled home the winning run off Joe Benz in the bottom of the eighth.

With two games left and only a one-game lead over St. Louis, who had replaced Chicago in second place, the Red Sox made a statement, scoring four runs in the third and nine runs in the fourth enroute to a 21-2 massacre that clinched the pennant on Sept. 25. At the same time, the White Sox overcame blowing a 5-0 lead to win 8-6 over St. Louis, putting the Browns two games behind with only one game left, clinching the pennant for Boston.

Boston finished off the regular season on a high note with Ernie Shore, who had suffered several hard-luck losses, won his 16th game of the season as Boston glided past the A's by a 5-1 score.

The Red Sox pitching was the best in the AL (2.16 ERA).

Leading the way for Boston were southpaws Babe Ruth (28-11, 1.41 ERA, league-leading 157 Ks) and Dutch Leonard (20-11, 2.28). Both got off to mediocre starts, but both caught fire around the same time. Ruth was 21-5 from June 2 through the end of the season while Leonard was 13-3 from July 6 through season's end. Righthander Carl Mays (13-10, 1.73) won several key games. Ernie Shore, who had dazzled with three no-hitters in the 1915 replay, suffered from lack of support, losing four games by 1-0 scores, and went 16-13, but had a 1.45 ERA. Saving his best for last was Rube Foster (9-9, 3.65), who struggled most of the season, but won six of his last decisions, all from Aug 4 on, to keep Boston in the race.

RF Harry Hooper and LF Duffy Lewis were the cornerstones in a great defensive outfield. Baserunners had a hard time advancing on their strong throwing arms and they both consistently choked off rallies with catches that other outfielders could not make. In CF, Tilly Walker, who came over from St. Lous, was not able to equal the talents of Tris Speaker (who had moved to Cleveland), but he was good enough to get the job done.
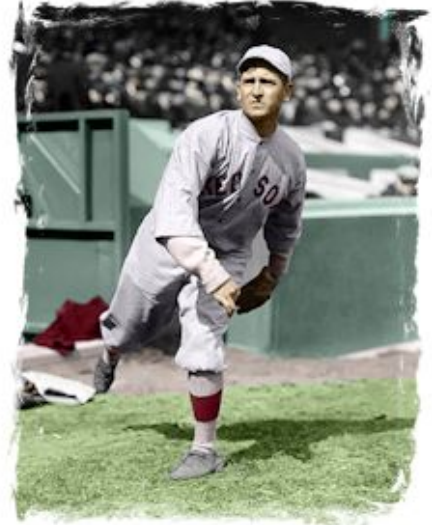

Boston's offense was not overwhelming, lacked power, and, from time-to-time, slumped, but were opportunistic when it counted. 3b Larry Gardner (.298, .345 OBP, 59 RBIs) was Boston's top-ranked hitter. Walker hit .292 and led the team in RBIs with 67. Duffy Lewis hit .283 with 58 RBIs and Hooper hit .279 and stole 28 bases. The combination of lefty Dick Hoblitzell (.274, 53 RBIs) and righty Del Gainer (.294, four HR) worked at first base. Pinch Thomas (.285) was the best hitter among a four-man catching corps, but lacked the defensive capabilities of Hick Cady, who only hit .150 and manager Bill Carrigan (.203), who played in limited action. Second base was a problem with Jack Barry failing to hit (.186) and lost to injuries two-thirds of the way through the season, but Hal Janvrin (.249) filled the gap and paired up well with defensive mainstay SS Everett Scott (.232).

OF Olaf Henrickson hit only .170 overall, but excelled in his pinch-hitting role, going 10-36, .277. Pinch running specialist Mike McNally was 17-1 on steal attempts.

Second place: St. Louis Browns 89-65, 578, - 2 games

A seventh-place finisher in the 1915 AL replay, the Browns, augmented by the addition of former Federal Leaguers OF Ward Miller and pitchers Dave Davenport and Eddie Plank came within an eyelash of winning the AL pennant, finishing a game behind Boston.

The steady pitching of the trio of Carl Weilman (26-8, league-best 1.20 ERA), Davenport (16-12, 2.79), Plank (15-9, 2.34) and veteran Bob Groom (14-9, 2.35) kept the Browns contention throughout the entire replay. While the starters generally performed well, they suffered control problems frequently and as a team, the Browns pitching staff walked 468 batters.

Rookie Ernie Koob (7-9, 4.35) started out well after a mid-season call up, but faded, losing his last three decisions, two of them to Boston during the September stretch run. Doc Crandall, another former Federal Leaguer, who had been counted on for relief help, was cut from the roster in April.

The top hitter in the Browns lineup was 1b George Sisler, who ranked fifth in AL batting (.325) and drove in 87 runs. 2b Del Pratt delivered another solid season with 31 doubles and 85 RBIs, despite hitting only .251. In CF, Armando Marsans (.276, 70 RBIs) previously with Washington, replaced Tilly Walker, who went to Boston. LF Burt Shotton led the league with 97 BB and stole 34 bases from the leadoff slot. Wade Miller hit .251 with 59 RBIs and 42 SB with a .355 OBP, seventh in the AL. Behind the plate, Hank Severeid hit .258 and drove in 38 runs.

Defensively, the Browns had problems with a team total of 187 errors. Wade Miller proved to be a liability in RF with a weak throwing arm and 10 errors. Marsans booted 14 balls in CF and Shotton made nine errors in LF. The SS combo of Doc Lavan (.242) and Ernie Johnson (.218) made 35 miscues and the pitching staff made an alarming 34 combined errors.

Lefty Carl Weilman was the mainstay of the Browns pitching staff, 26-8, league-best 1.20 ERA.

Third place: Chicago White Sox 88-66, .571, -2 games

The reigning AL replay champion White Sox came close to winning the AL a second time in a row, but lost their chance in the final 10 days of of the season, losing six of their final 12 games, including three of four to the Browns in their final series of the year. Chicago got off to a slow 11-12 start, but quickly moved into contention in May and stayed at or near the top spot for the remainder of the year.

Leading the way for Chicago was LF Joe Jackson, the MVP of the 1916 AL replay. Jackson, in his second season as a member of the White Sox, was their driving offensive force all season long. He was runner up to Ty Cobb in batting, hitting .365 and led the league in doubles (35), RBIs (108), slugging (.502), total bases (301) and base hits (219), tied for the lead in triples (17) and was third in OBP at .409. With a powerful arm, Jackson also was a defensive force that slowed runners from advancing very often.

On defense, the White Sox committed the fewest errors in the league (148). With a powerful arm in LF, Jackson was a defensive force that slowed runners from advancing very often. CF Happy Felsch was also a defensive whiz, committing only two errors all season. Felsch also enjoyed a fine year at the plate, hitting .303, sixth in the AL, and showed flashes of power with 29 doubles and seven HRs. Behind the plate, C Ray Schalk's emerged as the best defensive catcher in the AL and hit a respectable .249 with RBIs.

2b Eddie Collins anchored the infield with magnificent defensive play and hit a solid .277 with 78 BB and a .361 OBP. Collins did not hit with much power, but stole 58 bases.

The rest of the ChiSox infield failed to show the same level of defense as Eddie Collins and Schalk. Buck Weaver (.216, 53 RBIs, 25 doubles) split time between SS and 3b and struggled defensively with 29 errors. At first base, Jack Ness hit .295 and only struck out 12 times in 330 plate appearances, but lacked the defensive skills of Jack Fournier, who had an off year compounded by injuries, hitting only .237 in limited play.

RF Shano Collins could not maintain the same offensive prowess he showed in 1915 and fell to .243, but hit 20 doubles and 14 triples.

Chicago's pitching ranked alongside that of Boston in terms of quality. Their 2.35 ERA was second to the Red Sox. Chicago pitchers issued the fewest BB in the AL (421).

The deep White Sox staff was led by a pair of left-handers, second-year man Lefty Williams (19-6, 1.77, eight shutouts) and Reb Russell (16-9, 1.92). 1915 replay Cy Young winner Urban Faber (16-10, 2.23) and Joe Benz (12-7, 2.35) had good seasons. Eddie Cicotte, an 18-game winner in the ChiSox championship 1915 season, fell to 7-11, but had a 2.35 ERA with the White Sox scoring two or less runs in nine of his eleven losses. Mellie Wolfgang (8-5, 2.41) was effective as a part-time starter-reliever. Jim Scott (6-13, 2.92) was not able to replicate his 1915 championship season form.

Fourth place: Washington Senators 87-67, .565, -4 games

The Senators made a spirited bid for the AL flag in the 1916 replay. Washington jumprd into an early lead with an 11-game win streak in April and after dueling with St. Louis throughout may and mid-Juhe, the Senators moved to the lead on June 18, where the pitching quartet of Walter Johnson, Bert Gallia, Harry Hooper and Joe Boehling kept them on through August 18. After falling out of first place, the Senators lagged, scoring only one run in a five-game stretch while getting shut out twice by Chicago and Cleveland and scoring only one run during the five game stretch from Aug 25-30. The Senators went 15-10 the rest of the season to finish four games behind Boston. Even with the late slump, however the Solons still had an outside chance to win until the final week of the season.

The Senators were not a potent offense team, hitting.241, with slugging percentage of .307, which required them to depend on speed and inside baseball. The lack of a consistent offense put a great deal of stress on the pitching, which, fortunately for Washington, was outstanding.

Walter Johnson, Washington's great righthander, won 24 games.

Walter Johnson (24-17, 3.18, 23 CG, six shutouts), again ranked among the league leaders in wins, but it was a tough ago for the righthander. Johnson struggled with his control on occasion and walked 110 batters, but he just missed winning his fifth straight strikeout crown with155 Ks, only two behind strikeout leader Babe Ruth. Like seasons before, Johnson frequently suffered from a lack of run support with five of his 17 losses occurring when Washington failed to score.

Harry Harper (20-13, 2.02) was outstanding with a with six shutouts. His high point was a 9-1 no-hitter against St. Louis on May 24, followed by a 1-0 one-hitter over Boston's Babe Ruth five days later. In June, Harper threw back-to-back shutouts against Philadelphia and New York. In a carbon copy of the 1915 replay, Bert Gallia (16-10, 2.18), went 4-1 in September to keep Washington in the race Lefty Joe Boehling (13-5, 2.43 with the Senators) was having any outstanding season, but was traded to Cleveland, along with OF Danny Moeller, in August, for 3b Joe Leonard and Elmer Smith, in an effort to augment the offense. Jim Shaw (5-3) rebounded from a poor 1915 season and was used primarily in relief, notching two saves.

Offensively, the Senators tried to make up the lack of hitting with speed, leading the AL league in stolen bases with 211 swipes. Washington hit only 15 home runs as a team and ranked next-to-last in doubles with 167 two-base hits.

Diminutive 3b Eddie Foster (.263, .346 OBP, 77 BB) and had the highest batting average among Senator regulars and stole 49 bases, but also let the AL with 24 GIDPs. CF Clyde Milan was disappointing (.243, .305 OBP, 58 RBIs) but stole 53 bases while only being caught 10 times. Utilityman Howard Shanks (.253, 66 RBIs) and had an amazing 32-2 record on stolen base attempts.

C John Henry hit .266, but was only able to appear in 102 games. 1b Joe Judge hit .236 and stole 29 bases.

Elmer Smith, who came over in the Boehling trade along with Joe Leonard in August, hit a respectable .293 with 16 RBIs. Leonard hit .247, but only drove in 10 runs in 38 games.

Fifth place: Detroit Tigers, 76-78, .494, -15 games

Detoit may have had a losing season, but with a high-powered offense and a pitching staff that could implode at a moment's notice, they were a highly entertaining team to watch.

Detroit hovered around .500 all season long. By Sept. 13, the Tigers had climbed to 72-70 and appeared to have a shot at a winning record, but a four-game sweep at the hands of St. Louisa nd splits with Chicago and Cleveland in their final two series doomed them to a losing record for the 1916 season. The Tigers did take a measure of revenge on their Western opponents by posting a winning record against both second-place St. Louis and third place Chicago.

The Tiger offense, of course, was driven by batting champ CF Ty Cobb, who hit over .400 until Sept 11, when he finally fell below the revered batting average. Cobb won the AL batting title with a .391 mark and was tops in OBP at .463 and 117 runs scored, second in base hits with 207, third in RBIs with 92 and wound up eighth in home runs with six round-trippers. On the basepaths, Cobb was again a terror, swiping 80 bases, but getting nailed 33 times, the most in the American League

Cobb's wingman in LF, Bobby Veach, took advantage of Cobb's constant presence on the basepaths to drive in 107 runs, second in the league. Veach had 31 doubles and 14 triples and ranked in the top 10 with 168 hits. In RF, the combination of aging Sam Crawford (.333, 48 RBIs in 77 games) and Harry Heillman (.273, 62 RBIs) completed the most power-laden outield in the American League.

Tiger 1b George Burns tied with NY's Wally Pipp for the AL HR title with 11 home runs.

Adding to the offensive fireworks was 1b George Burns, who hit .285 and tied with Wally Pipp for the AL home run crown with 11 round-trippers. Burns drove in 87 runs. 2b Ralph Young his .255 with 59 RBIs and SS Donie Bush walked 68 times while hitting .248 with 19 SB. C Oscar Stanage hit .255 with 37 RBIs.

The Tigers had to rely primarily on a two-man pitching staff that consisted of the league's winningest pitcher, lefty Harry Coveleski (29-9), and righthander Hooks Dauss (16-8), who both had fine seasons.

Two problems, however, plagued the Detroit pitching situation: first, there were no reliable starters after Coveleski and Dauss to pick up the slack for the Tigers and second, the Tiger pitchers collectively walked more men than they struck out (487 BB) Jean Dubuc, a 22-game winner in the 1915 replay, slumped to 7-17, 4.16 and Bill James (not the one who starred for the 1914 Boston Braves) plodded to a weak 5-15, 5.34 record. Lefty Willie Mitchell, traded to the Tigers in mid-season for part-timer Marty Kavenaugh, surprised with a 9-5 record in half a season. Reliever Bernie Boland was 2-12 with an unsteady 7.45 ERA and was victimized time after time while trying to hold Tiger leads.

The Tigers defense continued to be an afterthought with the Detroit leading the AL with 215 errors. Stanage, the catcher recorded an abysmal 38 errors while the keystone combination of Donie Bush and Ralph Young combined for 47 errors.

Sixth place: Cleveland Indians 72-82, .468, -19 games

Cleveland, with Tris Speaker in the lineup moving over from Boston to take command in CF, slogged through a disappointing start, but improved throughout the season, going 31-21 over the final two months, highlighted by a seven-game win streak from Aug 16-23.

Speaker ranked third in AL batting (.352) and second in OBP (.438) while driving in 76 runs with 28 doubles and seven home runs. On the basepaths, Speaker stole 38 bases, but was caught stealing 23 times. In CF, Speaker was spectacular, committing only three errors while throwing out six baserunners.

The rest of Cleveland's offense was average with RF Braggo Roth (.274) and 1b Chick Gandil, previously with Washington, hitting .271 with a team-leading 77 RBIs.

Bill Wambganss (.260) spent time at 2b, SS and 3b, and somehow drove in 70 runs with only 15 extra-base hits in 140 games. Ray Chapman (.232) also bounced around the infield and, like Wambsganss, had no power with 13 extra base hits in 439 at bats, but unlike Wamby, only drove in 28 runs.

C Steve O'Neill played sound defense, but hit only .237 with 23 doubles. LF Jack Graney, who batted leadoff, hit only .218 but drew 73 BB.

Cleveland's pitching centered around hard-working Jim Bagby (21-12, 1.47), who led the league in appearances (49) and saved four games, second in the league.

Yankee 1b Wally Pipp hit nine HRs, second in the AL tied with teammate Roger Peckinpaugh.

It was a big dropoff to number two starter Stan Coveleski, who slumped to 10-15, 3.28 after going 24-12 in the 1915 replay. Ed Klepfer (9-6, 3.66), Fritz Coumbe (8-5, 1.61) and Guy Morton (7-11, 3.31) made up the remainder of the Tribe's rotation.

Seventh place: New York Yankees 61-93, .396, -54 games

New York got off to an encouraging 10-8 start in April, but lost 16 of their next 22 games, dooming them to a second division finish.

After falling to 29-34 on June 13, the Yankees picked up the pace considerably, going 21-19 for the rest of June and through July 29 to pull to within two games of .500 at 50-52.

The bottom then fell out as the Yankees suffered from a series of injuries that kept their lineup in a constant state of flux for the rest of season. Seven key players fell victim to ailments, resulting in New York having to rely on second-tier backup players for considerable lengths of time, watering down their offense and decimating their defense. Over the final two months of the season, the Yankees could only manage an 18-34 record, dropping them into seventh place.

Bob Shawkey (19-8, 1.83, five shutouts) rebounded from a woeful 1-11 1915 performance and stood out among AL pitchers while the injury-riddle offense was able to show up only occasionally.

1b Wally Pipp was New York's most consistent hitter (.267) and drove in 89 runs. SS Roger Peckinpaugh hit 22 doubles, hit nine home homers with 58 RBIs and led the team with 28 steals. 3b Frank (Home Run) Baker showed flashes of the past with eight HR and 53 RBIs, but missed a third of the season with injuries. 2b Joe Gedeon, acquired from St. Louis, stole 25 bases, but hit only .235.

Newcomer Nick Cullop, from the Federal League, was 12-10, 2.59 with 112 strikeouts while George Mogridge (12-11, 2.00) also pitched well at times. The remainder of the Yankee pitching staff was disappointing with Ray Fisher (6-12, 4.13) and Allan Russell (6-15, 3.18) both inconsistent all season long. Longtime Yankee mainstay Ray (Rube) Caldwell suffered through a 5-14, 4.97 year.

Cleveland CF Tris Speaker, in his first season with the Indians, hit .352 and totaled 198 hits with a .439 OBP.

Eighth place: Philadelphia Athletics, 45-109, .240, -46 games

A surprise in the replay was the performance of the last-place Athletics, who won nine more games than their real-life performance (45-109 versus 36-117) and nine games more than their horrible 37-117 record in the 1915 replay. While the Athletics still were a poor team, they were not nearly as bad as expected and teams could not count on being able to roll over team.

The A's started off the season with nine consecutive losses before they surprised New York with a three-game sweep in a visit to the Polo Grounds. After winning five of seven in early May, Philadelphia had a 9-20 record on May 13. The losses, however began to mount up more rapidly and by July 26, the A's were 32-67, bad, but not yet disastrous…but that was to come.

From July 27 through the rest of the season, the Athletics were 13-42, all the while sinking lower and lower in the cellar.

The only bright spot came during their final 12 games, when the A's went 6-6 after inserting newcomers 2b Roy Grover (.390 with 32 hits in 21 games) and OFs Buck Thrasher (.304, seven RBIs in eight games) and Jim Brown (.286, eight RBIs in 14 games) into the lineup for a look-see. The youngsters led the A's to a split in a four-game series at New York, followed by another four-game split at Washington, followed by winning the first two games at home against Red Sox on Sept. 23-24, threatening to derail Boston's pennant chances. The mini-surge ended, however, in Philadelpha's next-to-last game of the season, when Boston, obviously intent on nailing down the AL pennant, buried the Athletics 21-2, followed with a 5-1 seven-hitter by Ernie Shore to end the season for both clubs.

Despite Connie Mack's dismantling of the great A's teams of the early 1910s, the presence and performance of veterans like Amos Strunk (.329, .394 OBP), Wally Schang (.240, 11 HRs, tied for the AL lead, and 70 RBIs), Stuffy McInnis (.290, 66 RBIs) along with oldster Nap Lajoie (.243, 47 RBIS in two-thirds of a season before retiring) and the determined pitching of Joe Bush (14-19, 2.82), enabled the A's to ambush enough of their opponents to qualify as a spoiler in the 1916 replay.

Other than Bush, Philadelphia's pitching was a disaster. Elmer Myers (11-27, 4.96) led the league in losses and gave up the most runs in the league (175). Jack Nabors ranked second in losses (9-21, 4.94). The rest of the pitching staff combined for an 11-42 record with Tom Sheehan (416) the only other pitcher to record more than two wins.

Balks: Boston 2, Chicago 2, Cleveland 2, Detroit 1, St. Louis 1, Washington 1

For the second straight season, Detroit's offense was the best-hitting aggregation in the American League, led by batting champion Ty Cobb. The Tigers hit .271 as a team and let the league in OBP (.335), slugging (.359) and hits (1450).

Unfortunately, Detroit's offensive abilities were undone by a pitching staff that allowed the second highest run total in the AL (678) and a defense that committed 215 errors, the most in the league, leading to 154 unearned runs, the second-most allowed by any team other than Philadelphia's total 0f 170 unearned runs allowed.

League champ Boston hit only 11 home runs, the fewest in the AL, but their team .253 batting average ranked second in the league and their ability to score runs without power was signaled by their 73 sacrifices and 59 sacrifice flies. The only flaw in the Boston batting totals was their tendency to hit into double plays, leading the league with 117 GIDPs.

Playing in the home run friendly Polo Grounds, New York again led the league with 36 home runs, led by Wally Schang, who hit 11 home runs while playing in a limited role behind the plate and in the outfield. Roger Peckinpaugh hit nine HR and Frank Baker hit eight HRs accounting for all but eight of the Yankees home runs.

The stats for Boston and Chicago, the two teams with the best pitching staffs in the AL, were eerily like 1915. The Red Sox again had the best pitching staff in the American League with a collective 2.20 ERA and allowed the fewest runs (426) and hits (1073) while Chicago's pitchers again ranked second (2.35 ERA) and allowed only fifteen more total runs than Boston (235).

The Red Sox had a league-best 84 complete games and 24 shutouts, led by Babe Ruth with 31 CG with and 12 shutouts. The White Sox had 78 complete games, one less than second-place St. Louis (79 CG) and 21 shutouts, three less than Boston.

The team with the league's worst pitching, Philadelphia, actually showed some improvement from their horrid 1915 replay performance. The A's staff ERA of 5.20 was better than 1915 (5.61) and their runs allowed total of 950 was better than the previous season, when they opened the floodgates, allowing 1,048 run. The A's pitchers led the league in home runs allowed (37), far and away the most HRs allowed in the league. They further compounded their woes with a lack of control, walking an astounding total of 682 hitters, nearly 200 more than Detroit's pitchers, who walked 489 opposing batters.

AL MVP Joe Jackson, Ty Cobb, pitchers Babe Ruth, Harry Coveleski headline1916 American League All-Star team

Led by the top two top hitters in the 1916 AL replay and four lefties on the five-man AL pitching staff, the AL All-Star aggregation features some of baseball's all-time greats and well as very good players who had career years.

The southpaw-laden pitching staff was led by Babe Ruth (28-11), who was the driving force behind Boston's come-from-behind march to the pennant. Detroit's dependable Harry Coveleski (29-9) had a pair of nine-game win streaks. Browns lefty Carl Weilman (26-8) led the AL in ERA and Chicago's Lefty Williams (19-6) won nine in a row to start the season and threw three consecutive shutouts from June 24-July 3.

The only righthander on the five-man All-Star pitching staff was Cleveland's hard-working Jim Bagby (21-12), who led the AL in appearances and included five saves in addition to his 21 wins.

The offense was led by White Sox LF Joe Jackson, who led the league in doubles, RBIs, hits, slugging, total bases and sac flies while finishing second in the batting race to perennial All-Star Ty Cobb of Detroit. Cobb once again kept his average over .400 most the season, finishing at .391 with 92 RBIs and 80 SB along with a .467 OBP. In RF, Boston's Harry Hooper was the premier defensive player in the AL outfield while hitting .279 with 96 runs and 28 SB.

Boston 3b Larry Gardner was an All-Star repeater, hitting .298 and driving in 59 runs while providing solid defense, committing only nine errors. The All-Star 1b, George Sisler, came into his own, hitting .326, .383 OBP with 191 hits and 87 RBIs. At 2b, Eddie Collins remarkable defensive abilities anchored the right side of the White Sox infield while hitting a solid .277 and walking 78 times. New York's Roger Peckinpaugh was one of four shortstops whose defensive skills stood out, but Peck differentiated himself with his offensive performance that included nine HRs and 58 RBIs along with 28 SB and 75 runs scored.

Behind the plate, Chicago's Ray Schalk was a repeat All-Star. Like teammate Eddie Collins, Schalk's defense was a difference-maker.

Other players who deserved recognition: Tris Speaker, runner-up to Cobb in the batting race and OBP, as well as great defense, Philadelphia RF Amos Strunk (.328, .394 OBP, 85 runs, 33 doubles), Boston LF Duffy Lewis, who defensive talents, combined with a .285 BA and .383 OBP, made him a standout, NY 1b Wally Pipp (.267, 9 HR, 89 RBIs), Chicago CF Happy Felsch, who had a career season, hitting .303, driving in 80 runs and totaling 170 hits, Detroit LF Bobby Veach (.291 with 107 RBIs, hitting behind Cobb) and Tiger teammate 1b George Burns (.285, tied for league HR honors with 11 homers, along with 87 RBIs).

Pitchers who also stood out included Washington's combo of Walter Johnson (24-17, 3.18) and Harry Hooper (20-13, 2.02), Chicago's Reb Russell (16-9, 1.92) and Red Faber (16-10, 2.23), New York's Bob Shawkey, who rebounded from an awful season with Philadelphia (19-8, 1.83), Boston's Dutch Leonard (20-13), whose stretch drive pitching were one of the keys to Boston's pennant and Philadelphia's Joe Bush (14-19), who managed to win fourteen games with one of baseball's all-time worst teams.

1916 American League standouts

Cobb falls short of quest for .400 for second consecutive season

Ty Cobb, the dominant hitter in the Deadball Era, wound up hitting .391 for the 1916 replay in a mirror image of his 1915 replay quest for a .400 batting average.

Unlike 1915, when a late-season surge almost put him over the top, Cobb kept his average over .400 for all but the final eight days of the season, falling under .400 on September 18.

A recap of Cobb's bid for .400, starting on Sept. 11, when he was 196-487, .402:

Joe Jackson named AL MVP; served as driving offensive force for the White Sox

Chicago LF Joe Jackson, in his first full season with the White Sox, carried the team to within two games of their second straight pennant.

Jackson was selected as MVP on the basis of the importance of his performance in the context of the pennant race. Without Jackson, the White Sox would not have been able to generate the offense they possessed throughout the season.

In particular Jackson hit for power. While he hit only one homer, off Cliff Markle of the Yankees on May 23, he led the league in doubles (45) and tied for the lead in triples (17) and RBIs (108). On defense, his strong arm frequently prevented baserunners from advancing. He totaled eight outfield assists.

Jackson was remarkably consistent all season long, punctuated by during the 1916 replay. He reeled off a 16-game hitting streak May 19-June 3, hitting .500 (32-64) during the streak, scoring 14 runs and driving in nine runs. On June 4, Jackson went 0-4 against the Browns Dave Davenport, but then picked up where he left off, kicking off an 18-game hitting streak the next day. He hit .361 and drove in 16 runs during the second streak which ended on June 25, going 0-3 with a pair of walks in a 5-2 White Sox loss to Boston's Rube Foster. Combining both hitting streaks and the one game he failed to hit on June 4, Jackson hit .414 in 35 games, driving in 25 runs. The White Sox were 21-16 during the twin streaks.

Later in the season, Jackson had two more hitting streaks. He hit .410 during a 10-game hitting streak from July 4-14. Down the stretch, when Chicago needed his bat the most, Jackson hit .422 in another 16-game hitting streak from Aug 28-Sept 11.

Jackson had a six-hit game against New York on May 24, going 6-6, with a double and five singles, driving in a run in a first-inning eight-run outburst by the White Sox. He scored four times in what turned into a 17-2 romp.

21-year old Babe Ruth cops Cy Young honors led Red Sox to 1916 flag

Young Babe Ruth, in his third season in the majors, became the leader of the vaunted Red Sox pitching staff,

Ruth (28-11) finished second in wins to Detroit's Harry Coveleski, but almost single-handedly pitched the Red Sox out of a slow start with an 11-game win streak from June 2-July 4, including two shutout wins over St. Louis and a shutout of the hard-hitting Tigers.

As Boston got closer to the lead down the stretch, Ruth reeled off a six-game win streak from Aug 24-Sept 10 that pulled Boston into the lead. Included in the streak were two shutout wins over Cleveland and a shutout of the White Sox.

Ruth concluded the season with a 1.41 ERA, second only to St. Louis lefty Carl Weilman and threw 12 shutouts to lead the league. He also led the AL in strikeouts, snapping a four-year run as strikeout king by Walter Johnson and led the American League with 363.3 innings pitched.

Detroit lefty Harry Coveleski led the AL in wins

Harry Coveleski, Det

Southpaw Harry Coveleski topped AL pitchers with a 29-9 record that included nine shutouts. Coveleski's ERA of 1.69 ranked sixth in the league. He almost single-handedly carried the Tigers pitching load all season long, starting 39 games, tied with Babe Ruth, and recording 31 complete games, along with Ruth, both figures the most in the AL. His 351 innings pitched was second in the league to Ruth.

After losing three of his first four starts, Coveleski ran off eight wins in a row from Apr 25-May 29, recording back-to-back shutouts in the final two wins of the streak, blanking Washington 13-0 on May 20 and throwing a 1-0 one-hitter at Philadelphia on May 25. Coveleski couldn't contain St. Louis in the first game of the Tigers Memorial Day doubleheader on May 31, losing 5-4 to the Browns and snapping his win streak.

Coveleski picked right back up, however, winning the next four in a row to improve to 13-4 before losing to Chicago 8-1 on June 15, giving up three unearned runs and a home run to Buck Weaver.

Coveleski kept on winning the rest of the season and finished with five straight wins to conclude the season, but the best the Tigers could do behind him was finish 76-78 with no other pitcher other than Hooks Dauss (16-8) to back up Coveleski.

Overlooked Carl Weilman almost pitched St. Louis to the pennant; tossed no-hitter on Aug 20

AL ERA leader Carl Weilman (1.20) started the season with an 11-game win streak that turned normally docile Browns into a serious contender.

Weilman opened the season with three shutouts in his first four starts, edging Chicago's Eddie Cicotte on Apr 15 by a 2-0 score, Chicago, blanking Detroit 7-0 on Apr 24 and holding Philadelphia to three singles to beat Elmer Myers on May 1.

Weilman also pitched a shutout in the final win in the 11-game skein, throwing a one-hitter at Cleveland on June 5 to beat Guy Morton 3-0. Weilman's streak ended on June 11 at Detroit when he was outpitched by Hooks Dauss in a 3-0 Tiger victory.

With the scent of a pennant in the air, Weilman cranked up another win streak beginning Aug 1, chalking up a relief win in a 13-inning 4-3 win over the Tigers. He won his next six in a row to run the streak to seven, highlighted by a 5-0 no-hit win over Washington's Harry Harper on Aug 20.

As the calendar flipped to September, Weilman ran into some problems, dropping a Labor Day decision to Boston's Ernie Shore 4-2 followed by a 2-0 loss to Washington's Walter Johnson two days later. Weilman recovered, however, to win three of his four final starts, including a clutch win against challenging Chicago, but it was not quite enough to bring the AL pennant to the Gateway City.

1916 American League pinch hitting

American League pinch-hitters hit a combined .205 in 1916 with a .266 OBP.

The top pinch-hitting team in the 1916 AL was the pennant-winning Red Sox, whose pinch-hitting corps hit a superior .302 with 26 RBIs. Second place Chicago and sixth-place Cleveland were the most frequent employers of pinch hitters, both with 105 pinch-hit at bats.

Yankee Paddy Baumann had the highest BA for pinch-hitters (10 or more pinch-hit appearances), going 7-13, .538. Browns 1b Babe Borton hit .429 as a pinch-hitter with a .429 OBP on six pinch hits.

Boston's Olaf Henriksen had 10 pinch hits, including two triples, the most hits among pinch-hitters. Marty Kavenaugh, who split the season between the Tigers and Indians, was the busiest pinch-hitter, stepping to the plate 37 times in a pinch-hit role.

Paddy Baumann, in his first season with NY, hit .538 as a

Wally Schang of Philadelphia and Boston's Del Gainer hit the only pinch-hit HRs. Schang's HR came off New York's Ray Keating on May 29 as the A's edged NY in a 14-13 slugfest. Gainer's HR, on Sept 4, was a two-run shot in the 11th inning against Detroit's Jean Dubuc, giving the Red Sox a tough 11-9 win in the midst of Boston's September stretch run to the pennant.

A mid-season swap between Washington and Cleveland sending the Senators Danny Moeller to the Indians for Cleveland's Elmer Smith worked out well for both teams, in terms of pinch-hitting expertise. Moeller ended up hitting .455 as a pinch hitter while Smith, who was the AL's top pinch-hitter in the 1915 replay with a .400 BA, checked in with an excellent pinch-hit .313 BA in 1916.

Washington's light-hitting offense used the sacrifice six times in a tough 4-1, 11-inning win against Detroit on May 5.

The White Sox used the sacrifice bunt five times, twice in the fourth and twice in the 11th inning, to edge Boston 6-4 on May 17. Four of the ChiSox runs directly resulted from squeeze plays, helping them edge Rube Foster in the extra-inning game.

Philly and Det set off fireworks in Fourth of July series

Ordinarily a four-game series between a fourth-place team and the cellar dweller would not attract much attention.

 Philadelphia and Detroit, however, combined for an offensive show July 4-7 that seemed like one continuous Independence Day fireworks extravaganza that lasted four games. Everyone seemed to get into the act as the hits and runs kept coming as the teams battled to a 2-2 split.

The A's won the July 4 opener 12-10, piling up 20 hits, including four hits apiece by Jimmie Walsh and Nap Lajoie, and nearly blowing 12-4 lead when Detroit scored six runs in the bottom of the eighth. A's reliever Marsh Williams held the Tigers scoreless in the bottom of the ninth to preserve the win.

Detroit answered with a 16-9 win in Game Two. Down 8-2 early, the Tigers tied the game 8-8 with a six-run fifth inning and went on to score seven more runs to win by seven runs. Lee McElwee had four hits for Phila while Detroit's Oscar Stanage went 5-5 and Donie Bush went 4-5 as Detroit accumulated 21 hits while the A's totaled 20 hits for the second consecutive game.

Ty Cobb went on a major tear in The Fireworks Series. Cobb was 11-15, .733 with an OBP of .762 in the four games. He had three hits in each of the first three games. Cobb totaled 5 RBIs ,4 runs, 4 BB and a HBP, but the Tigers could only manage a split with the last-place A's.

The A's rebounded to win a 6-5, 10-inning battle in Game Three, with Wally Schang hitting an RBI single in the top of the 10th as Phila pounded out 15 hits while Detroit struck for 10 hits of their own.

The finale was another 6-5, 10-inning game only this time Detroit was the victor, overcoming an early 4-0 deficit, pounding out 10 hits, including a homer by winning pitcher Hooks Dauss.

For the series, Philadelphia was 64-168, .381 while Detroit was 53-153, .346. A's 1b Stuffy McInnis went 10-12, .500 with 4 doubles, 5 RBIs and

Chisox prevail in The Series without Offense, Aug 10-13

The White Sox, 60-50, six games behind Washington on Aug 9, needed to turn things around to stay in the pennant race. Facing Boston at Comiskey Park for a four-game set, Chicago won three games, scoring only seven runs, while holding the second-place Red Sox to just two runs.

Chicago won the opener 2-0 on a one-hitter by Red Faber, who beat Rube Foster. Chicago scored on an error by Boston CF Tilly Walker and an RBI double by Ray Schalk. Boston's only hit came in the eighth, when Del Gainer singled.

White Sox righty Jim Scott made it two one-hit shutout wins in a row for Chicago in Game Two as he blanked Boston 1-0, edging Carl Mays, who only allowed six hits. The only run in the game resulted from an error by Red Sox SS Everett Scott followed by an RBI single by Joe Jackson.

It was Boston's turn in Game Three, beating the White Sox 1-0 behind Dutch Leonard, who gave up only a pair of singles. Boston 3b Larry Gardner drove in the game's only run with an RBI single in the sixth.

Chicago made it three of four with a 4-1 win in the finale with Lefty Williams giving up six hits, but only one run, to beat Babe Ruth, who allowed only five hits.

Chicago hit only .176 in the series (22-125) while the Red Sox offense was almost non-existent, hitting only .101 (12-119) with only two extra-base hits, both in Game Four via a home run by Del Gainer followed by a triple by Tilly Walker who did not score. The series win improved Chicago's record to 63-51, but they could not make up any ground on Washington, who remained six games in front. Boston fell to 65-49, four games out.

Pitcher's batting

In keeping with the offensive-minded mentality of their team's primary strength, the Detroit pitching staff generated the most offense from their pitching staff. Tiger pitchers totaled 106 hits for a combined .229 with an OBP of .285 and scored 39 runs, all tops in the league.

The leading hitters on the Detroit pitching staff were Jean Dubuc and Hooks Dauss, who both hit .233 and Harry Coveleski, who hit .232 with 32 hits, second among pitchers. The threesome combined to drive in 33 runs.

For the second replay season in a row, the pitcher who delivered the most production was Boston's Babe Ruth, whose performance hinted at hitting prowess to come. Ruth hit .238, but led AL pitchers with 19 RBIs and nine extra base hits, including five doubles and a pair of home runs. Ruth's 34 hits were tops among pitchers.

Detroit's George Cunningham only had 34 at bats, but made them count, producing 14 hits, giving him a league-high BA, among pitchers, of .412.

Ruth's teammate Dutch Leonard was also busy at the dish, hitting .267 and driving in 16 runs and totaling seven doubles.

Combined with Ruth, the twosome of Ruth and Leonard hit .250 with 35 RBIs and 14 runs, which meant opposing pitchers could not gloss over the ninth spot in the Boston batting order

St. Louis pitchers spent most of their time at the plate with their bats on their shoulders, accumulating a surprisingly high total of 55 bases on balls, but also fanned 125 times. Dave Davenport walked 19 times and Ernie Koob drew 13 BB to lead Browns pitchers. Davenport struck out the most times among pitchers, fanning 48 times.

For the second straight season, Chicago's pitchers led the league in sacrifices with 25, led by Reb Russell', who had nine sacrifices, which ranked in the league's top ten among all batters. White Sox pitchers fanned 136 times, the most in the AL.

Team pitching notes

Boston started the season with three shutout wins in their first four games over Washington Apr 11-13. Babe Ruth blanked the Senators 8-0 in the season opener and Ernie Shore followed with a 5-0 shutout. On Apr 15, at Philadelphia, Ruth threw a second straight shutout in the opener of their three-game series with the A's winning 13-0.

Washington's 11-game win streak in April, the Senators only allowed six runs in six-game during stretch from Apr 22-26.

From June 15-19, the Senators pitching staff recorded four shutouts in five games, including three consecutive shutouts in the last three games of the stretch.

The Red Sox allowed the Indians only one run in each of four straight games as Boston swept Cleveland July 4-7.

Boston swept St. Louis in Fenway Park July 13-16, giving up only four runs to the Browns in the four-game sweep. Two of the wins were back-to-back shutouts by Babe Ruth and Carl Mays.

With the season dwindled down to eight games remaining and Boston seeking to protect their first place standing, the Red Sox swept the Yankees Sept 18-21, holding New York to 14 hits in four games (14-119, .118). Carl Mays and Dutch

Leonard both fired three-hitters to win the first two games. In Game Three, Babe Ruth prevailed 6-1 with a four-hitter and Ernie Shore followed with a 4-0 four-hit shutout in the finale to complete the sweep.

Individual pitching notes

Quick starts: Browns mainstay Carl Weilman reeled off 11 wins in a row Apr 15-June 15 to begin the season.

Chicago's Lefty Williams won nine in a row to begin the season Apr 20-June 15. After losing to St. Louis by a5-3 score on June 19, Williams threw shutouts in his next three starts, blanking Boston, Philadelphia and New York to improve to 12-1 over the first half of the season.

Boston's Babe Ruth opened the season with back-to-back shutouts. Ruth blanked Washington 8-0 on April 12, Opening Day and four days later whitewashed the A's 13-0 on four hits.

After losing to Ruth on Opening Day, Walter Johnson won his next six starts in a row Apr 13-May 1. Walter's pitching wingman, Harry Harper, lost his first two starts and then won five in a row Apr 15-May 2.

Wild man. Washington's Joe Boehling served up three wild pitches, two of them to consecutive batters, contributing to a 6-1 loss to Chicago on July 7. Boehling's loss was only his fourth defeat in 13 decisions.

Great Scott! In a strange confluence of names, Chicago's Jim Scott pitched a one-hit shutout in an important Aug 11 win over Boston. The only hit was by Red Sox SS Everett Scott in the second inning.

Hard luck. Boston righthander. Ernie Shore, who came off a great 1915 season that included three no-hitters, ran into several tough losses in 1916. Shore lo (16-13) lost four games by a 1-0 score and two games by a 2-1 score.

Clutch time. Boston's Rube Foster, 20-4 in the 1915 replay, was not able to perform at the same high level in 1916, but he delivered when it mattered most, winning his last five starts from Aug 26-Sept 15, to finish 9-9 and, more importantly, help the Red Sox win the 1916 pennant.

Bats on the shoulder. Browns ace Carl Weilman only allowed only 13 hits in 45 innings in a five-game stretch in August. Included in the stretch were a 1-0 no-hitter over Washington, a pair of 2-1 three hit wins (Boston and Cleveland), a 4-1 three-hitter to beat New York and an 11-0 four-hit shutout over the Senators.

Kicking off a six-game win streak, righthander Bert Gallia fired four straight shutouts May 14-26, allowing only 13 hits. He had a stretch of 38 consecutive scoreless innings before he gave up a run to Boston during a 9-4 win on May 31.

Change is good. One time Cleveland ace Willie Mitchell recorded a five-game win streak May 9-29, winning two games with Cleveland before being dealt to Detroit on June 1. After losing his next four decisions, Mitchell won six in a row, to finish 9-5 with Detroit and 11-7 for the 1916 campaign.

Longtime Cleveland mound stalwart Willie Mitchell got off to a slow 2-2 start for the Indians. He was dealt to Detroit on June 16 and re-discovered his form, going 9-5 with the sixth-place Tigers.

JOE BOEHLING
P.—Cleveland Americans

In mid-August, the Senators traded Joe Boehling, who was 13-5 for Washington, along with light-hitting OF Danny Moeller to Cleveland for OF Elmer Smith and 3b Joe Leonard in an effort to punch up their weak-hitting offense and stay in contention down the stretch.

Boehling went 5-4 for the Indians, Although Smith hit a respectable .293 and drove in 16 runs for the Senators, Washington sorely missed Boehling's mound presence down the stretch.

Boston's great outfield of LF Duffy Lewis, CF Tilly Walker and RF Harry Hooper was one of the difference makers for the Red Sox. Lewis and Hooper possessed very strong arms and opposing baserunners had a difficult time advancing on either outfielder. Walker, who replaced CF Tris Speaker in 1916, was not the equal of Lewis and Hooper (or Speaker) but played well enough to fill the gap left by Speaker's departure to Cleveland.

Detroit RF Sam Crawford, wearing sunglasses, zeroes in on a fly ball to right field. Crawford, at the tail end of his career, only played in half of Detroit's games, but still totaled 10 outfield assists.

Athletics 1b Stuffy McInnis, one of the few remaining holdovers from Connie Mack's great teams of the early 1910s continued to perform well for the A's. McGinnis made only two errors at 1b in the 1916 replay.

Senators Harry Harper no-hits Browns; pulls Washington to within two games of lead

Washington knocked off the league-leading Browns 9-1, but the big news was a no-hitter by the Senators Harry Harper.

Washington wasted no time putting the game away in the bottom of the first, scoring seven runs.. Charlie Jamieson hit a two-run single and Howard Shanks doubled home two more runs as the Senators sent 12 batters to the plate in the inning.

With the game well in hand, Harper was in total command, but had to battle control challenges in the first five innings, when he walked six hitters.

In the fourth, Harper walked Burt Shotton, Wade Miller, and Del Pratt to load the bases and, with two out, walked Armando Marsans scoring Shotton. Harper got out of the jam by getting Jimmy Austin to fly out to end the inning.

Harper's control problems continued in the fourth, when he walked Hank Severeid to start the inning, but the Browns could not capitalize. Harper walked Wade Miller, the Browns first batter to open the sixth, and, again, the Browns could not get anything going.

Harper then settled down and retired the Browns in order over the final three innings to complete his no-hitter and give the Senators their second win in three games against the Browns and put Washington out of first place.

The win was Harper's seventh of the year against four losses. For Browns starter George Baumgardner, who absorbed the seven-run outburst in the first inning, the loss was his first decision of the season.

Overlooked in all the excitement of Harper's no-hitter was a 3-4 performance by Washington's Howard Shanks, who had three extra-base hits, including a two-run homer and a pair of doubles, along with four RBIs.

Joe Boehling no-hitter keeps Senators in front of St. Louis by one game

Lefty Joe Boehling fired a no-hit gem to beat Cleveland 2-0 and keep Washington (45-23) in first place by a game over second-place St. Louis (44-24), who kept pace with an 8-4 win over the last-place Athletics.

Boehling and Indians' ace Jim Bagby locked up in scoreless duel for the first six innings when Howard Shanks walked, stole second and third and scored on a sac fly by Rip Williams.

Boehling continued to keep Cleveland at bay in the seventh and eighth innings and got an insurance run in the ninth when Eddie Foster doubled and scored on an RBI single by Shanks to put the Senators ahead 2-0.

In the bottom of the ninth, Boehling retired Steve O'Neill, pinch-hitter Bill Wambsganss and Jack Graney in order to nail down the win and complete his no-hitter. Boehling struck out five batters and walked three, with two of the baserunners erased when Ray Chapman and Tris Speaker were both gunned down by Senators C John Henry on steal attempts.

The no-hitter was Boehling's second win in a row and improved his record to 7-3 for the season. Bagby, who only allowed four hits, saw a two-game win streak snapped and fell to 10-5.

Carl Weilman no-hitter lifts Browns into first place

With Washington and St. Louis tied for the AL lead with identical 71-49 records, Carl Weilman rose to the occasion with his finest pitching performance of the 1916 season, no-hitting the Senators 1-0, outdueling Harry Harper.

The win gave St. Louis a one-game lead over Washington, who had hung on to the AL lead for two months.

Weilman and Harper both pitched scoreless ball until the sixth, when Browns leadoff hitter Burt Shotton opened the inning with a single. Harper then walked Ward Miller, to move Shotton to second and, two batters later, Del Pratt doubled Shotton home with what proved to be the only run in the game.

Washington, meanwhile, could not touch Weilman. The Senators only managed three BB off Weilman, while striking out five times.

The loss was the Senators sixth loss in their past eight games, which dropped them out of first place for the first time since June 18. St. Louis won their ninth game in their past 10 contests, rebounding after losing a grueling 14-inning game to the Senators, snapping an eight-game Browns win streak.

For Weilman (21-5), the no-hitter was his sixth straight win, dating back to July 18, when he blanked Washington 1-0 to beat Walter Johnson. Harper (19-12) lost his second straight start after losing to Detroit 4-3 on Aug 16, giving up the winning run in the ninth inning.

The win was a form of payback for St. Louis, who were no-hit by Harper on May 24.
